Criminal History & National Sex Offender Registry Check

AmeriCorps requires a criminal history background check on National Service Participants to ensure protection of the community members with whom we work, particularly children, individuals with disabilities, and individuals over 60 years old. In conducting this check, we are investigating for past sexual offenses and violent crimes. Minor offenses, unless affecting your assignment, will not bar you from service. If a background check is returned with offenses that bar you from service, your position with the WCC will terminate immediately.

This background check will entail a search of the National Sex Offender Public Website (NSOPW), the repository for Washington State, and the repository for the state where you resided when applying for the WCC Program, if applicable. In addition, an FBI criminal background check will be required if the position for which you are applying interacts with vulnerable populations on a recurring basis.

The NSOPW and the state repository checks will be completed prior to a job offer. If your position requires you to be fingerprinted for an FBI background check, you will be provisionally hired, but until this check is returned and you are cleared, you will not be permitted to work with vulnerable populations without supervision.

By completing the information below, you authorize the WCC to conduct the necessary background checks. Please disclose any convictions you have that involve crimes against people, including arson, assault, burglary, crimes against vulnerable individuals, harassment, kidnapping, manslaughter, murder, rape, robbery, and sexual offenses. These may or may not disqualify you from service, but neglecting to disclose your criminal history could result in termination. Please list and explain the circumstances of your convictions on the back or next page of this form.
